SPAIN THREATENS BOMBING GERMAN, ITALIAN CITIES

French Warn Loyalists Such Acts May Bring Serious Reprisals

BULLETIN
Paris, June 25—(AP)—Italy tonight notified France the Fascist airforce would wipe Spanish government cities off the map, if the Barcelona Spanish government should bomb Italian cities.

Hendaye, France—At the Spanish Frontier—June 25—(AP)—More than 100,000 government and insurgent troops today were fighting one of the bloodiest battles of the almost two-year-old Spanish civil war.

The battle, for control of the Teruel-Mediterranean highway, extended along a 15-mile front with its center at Sarrion, 22 miles southeast of Teruel. It was increasing in intensity hourly.

Another insurgent spearhead was thrusting toward Valencia south of Onda, 12 miles inland from the Mediterranean and 35 miles north of Valencia.

Sixty thousand government militiamen were estimated to be defending the Teruel highway against 40,000 insurgents who have an advantage in planes and motorized equipment.

The insurgents reported slight advances south of the highway, but seemed unable to take advantage of their gains. Government counterattacks put General Jose Varella's legionnaires repeatedly on the defensive.

The southern flank of the front rested on Manzanera, seven miles south of Sarrion, while the northern end was at Mora de Rubielos, heavily-fortified key point eight miles north of the highway. Government forces still held Mora.

The insurgents' aim is to move down the highway to Valencia.

THREATENS RAIDS

Paris, June 25—(AP)—Farflung aerial reprisals, including bombardment of "Italian-dominated" towns in the Balearic islands, have been threatened by the Spanish government unless Generalissimo Franco quits bombing civilian centers behind Spain's patelines.

Despite urgent British and French admonitions against "rash acts," the Spanish embassy in Paris insisted today that retaliation would be taken into consideration unless the insurgent chiefs abstain from that type of warfare.

The embassy said that since Franco's raiders operate largely from the Spanish Balearic islands, the reprisals raised certainly would be directed against "Italian-dominated towns there."

The embassy itself did not elaborate on nor confirm a previous implication that the government might carry aerial warfare to German or Italian cities or other non-Spanish objectives.

Sources close to the French office, however, said the Barcelona government had threatened to bomb cities of "those foreign governments which share responsibility for insurgent bombardment of Spanish civilian centers."

Barcelona authorities insist that Italian and German planes and fliers participated in repeated raids on Spanish coastal cities and towns.

Informed quarters said the French appeal to Barcelona was made in "energetic" terms and included a warning that such raids were sure to bring "a mass reply which would add materially to the difficulties of the Spanish republic and have dangerous repercussions in the whole international situation."

Hiker is First A Boy, Then a Girl

A 14-year-old hitch-hiker, who attracted attention because of the emaciated condition of a small dog carried by the visitor, told police yesterday afternoon that his name was William Coleman of Mobile, Ala. While Chief Van Bibber turned his attention to the more than half starved dog and provided food for the canine, other members of the department became suspicious and questioned the visitor. It developed that 14-year-old William Coleman was 18-year-old William Coleman, a buxom girl with a decided southern accent and a very pleasant smile.

She told varied stories of her exploits and destinations as well as points she had visited and her favorite method of travel, so after providing her traveling companion the small mongrel dog with food, Chief Van Bibber arranged comfortable quarters for the visitor overnight and this morning the youthful feminine globe trotter resumed her wanderings.

Got New Shirt

Springfield, Ill., June 25—(AP)—Governor Horner was honorary governor of Boys' State today—but it cost him his shirt in the process. When the governor completed his talk to the 1,400 youths attending the American Legion sponsored citizen training camp, they voted with a lusty whoop to make him honorary governor. A committee came forward, presenting him with traditional Boys' State hat and shirt. He donned the hat and extended the shirt before him. "Put it on," the boys yelled. "All right, I will," the executive replied, and peeled off coat, collar, tie and shirt while the boys cheered. The new shirt fitted perfectly.

"COPPERHEADS" PRESIDENTIAL NAME FOR FOES

F. D. R. Talks Over Air And Defends Right to Intervene

Washington, June 25—(AP)—President Roosevelt, declaring a right to intervene in Democratic primaries, gave virtual notice today he was prepared to fight personally for election of a Congress favorable to his policies.

In his 12th "fireside chat" by radio to the nation last night, the President made it plain he would not hesitate to speak out when he thought a contest between a "liberal" and a "conservative" warranted.

"As the president of the United States, I am not asking the voters of the country to vote for Democrats next November as opposed to Republicans or members of any other party," he said. "Nor am I, as president, taking part in Democratic primaries."

"As the head of the Democratic party, however, charged with the responsibility of carrying out the definitely liberal declaration of principles set forth in the 1936 Democratic platform, I feel that I have every right to speak in those few instances where there may be a clear issue between candidates for a Democratic nomination involving these principles, or involving a clear misuse of my own name."

The President spoke into a half-dozen microphones from behind a small desk in the oval, diplomatic room of the White House.

Reviewed Legislation
Besides touching on politics, he reviewed legislation enacted by the last Congress and asked for the cooperation of capital and labor in maintaining wages in replacing Federal "pump priming" outlays with private spending.

"Barring unforeseen events," he told his listeners, there will be no special session of Congress.

He mentioned also the defeat last year of his proposal to reorganize the courts and asserted the net result had been "an important victory for the people of the United States—a lost battle which won a war."

Asserting that in one way or another the "real objectives" of his court message to Congress had been attained, he added:

"The attitude of the Supreme Court towards constitutional ques-

Mother Sees Hope of Recovery for Child Stricken With Sleeping Malady

Chicago, June 25—(AP)—For three months to the day, pretty golden-haired two-year-old Mary Ellen Reardon has tossed in a coma which doctors have diagnosed as sleeping sickness that set in after an attack of measles.

But to her mother, Mrs. Daniel F. Reardon, who has cared constantly for the child since she slipped into her strange restless half-slumber March 25, there are encouraging signs of improvement.

"I'm very hopeful that soon she will be well again," said the mother. "In comparing her condition now with what it was the end of March I can see much improvement."

Mrs. Reardon said the youngster now seems somewhat aware of her surroundings, even though she has not yet given a definite sign of recognizing her mother.

FORMER DEPUTY WILL UNDERGO MURDER TRIAL

Youth, 18, Originally Accused of Crime Serving Term

South Paris, Me., June 25—(AP)—Francis M. Carroll, 43-year-old former deputy sheriff, expressed willingness today to have citizens of his own Oxford county try him on a charge he murdered Dr. James G. Littlefield, for whose slaying Paul N. Dwyer, 18, is serving a life sentence.

Changing previously-announced plans to seek a change of venue, Defense Counsel Clyde H. Chapman, former Attorney General, and Edward J. Beauchamp, Lewiston lawyer, sought only an extension of the trial date, set yesterday for July 12 after Carroll pleaded innocent to the murder indictment.

Superior Court Justice William H. Fisher re-set the date of the trial for July 25.

Ralph M. Ingalls, special Assistant Attorney General, appointed originally to prosecute a morals charge against Carroll and who presented evidence on the murder charge to the grand jury, yesterday voiced the state's contention that Carroll and not Paul Dwyer killed the aged physician.

Established Motive
Official silence greeted the question of what was to be the future status of the slender schoolboy convicted of the 67-year-old physician's slaying October 13. Dwyer, erstwhile intimate friend of Carroll's daughter, Barbara, 18, also signed a confession he slew the doctor's wife, Lydia, in adjacent Cumberland county.

Explaining the murder charge against Carroll, Ingalls said in a statement "the state contends that his boy (Dwyer) possessed letters detrimental to the future of Francis M. Carroll. They were letters written by one of his minor children, so reflecting upon Carroll that their possession by young Dwyer menaced Carroll."

"When this information passed into the hands of one of the respectable citizens of Paris, Dr. Littlefield, a motive for murder was established."

Sweitzer, former county clerk, following settlement of a judgment for $269,126 against the company which bonded him.

Patrol Bombers On Mass Flight

San Diego, Calif., June 25—(AP)—Forty-eight great patrol bombers left San Diego bay this morning on the navy's largest massed flight—1,200 miles—non-stop to Seattle.

Knows Difference

Augusta, Ga., June 25—(AP)—A young woman applicant for a civil service job here knows now that between "lighthouse keeping" and "light house-keeping" there's more difference than appears to the eye.

At the postoffice, where she tried to sign up for the examination as assistant lighthouse keeper, officials explained the only similarity in this modern age of electricity is that neither lighthouse keepers nor light housekeepers have to trim the lamps any more.

CHILD DROWNED AT PARK STILL MISSING TODAY

The body of Phyllis Jackson, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Jackson of Wheaton, who early yesterday morning was swept from the arms of her father when a CCC crew attempted to rescue the family from a marooned position on top of their car stalled in Pine creek at White Pines state park, had not been recovered at noon today.

Sheriff Delos Blanchard of Ogle county reported every effort had been made to locate the body but the search had been made hazardous by the flood stage of the creek. The water is still very high, abetted by last night's rain, and it is almost impossible to do anything in a boat, the sheriff said.

Sheriff Arthur R. Bennett of Du Page county, the home of the Jackson family, assisted in the search this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson with their two daughters Phyllis and Patricia arrived at the park Wednesday to spend the week-end. During the rainstorm of Thursday night they were driven from their camp site and in attempting to cross the creek in their car the motor became flooded and the machine was stalled. The family spent several hours on top of their car before help came. The older daughter was lost as the family was being towed to shore on a rope.

Allen Appointed Brigadier-General

Springfield, Ill., June 25—(AP)—Governor Horner announced today the formal promotion of Col. Francis M. Allen of River Forest, commander of the 131st Illinois National Guard Infantry, to the rank of brigadier general in command of the 53rd cavalry brigade comprising the Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin regiments.

In making the appointment, Governor Horner said he received the cooperation of Governor LaFollette of Wisconsin and Governor Murphy of Michigan.

"The long and honorable service of General Allen merits this promotion," the governor said. "His service has been a credit to the military forces."

During the World War, Gen. Allen served overseas with his regiment as a captain and major. He was decorated with the Croix de Guerre by the French and received various other citations.

Report Chinese Plan New Breaks In Dykes to Hamper the Japanese

Shanghai, June 25—(AP)—Chinese were reported today from Hankow to be planning new breaks in Yellow river dykes to hamper Japanese invaders.

With Japanese already forced by floods to withdraw their major forces east of Chengchow on the Lunghai railway and to plan an attack from the west through Shanxi province, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's strategists were said to be contemplating cutting the dykes west of the city.

But before resorting to a new flood, Chinese pressed the recapitulation of as many towns in Shanxi province as possible before the new Japanese offensive gets under way.

They claimed to have surprised Japanese garrisons in villages near Linfen, 60 miles north and east of

Press Search for Heir As Companion's Body is Located at Base of Cliff

McCormick Youth Is Still Missing in Terrain of N. Mexico

Albuquerque, N. M., June 25—(AP)—A call was issued for experienced mountain climbers today on the possibility John Medill McCormick, missing since Wednesday, might be clinging to a ledge on the almost sheer cliff of a rugged Sandia mountain peak.

The body of Richard Whitmer, 20-year-old companion of the publishing heir on an ill-fated mountain climbing expedition, was found last night, crumpled at the base of the cliff.

A plane was en route from Colorado Springs, Colo., with a group of veteran mountain climbers who are to scale the towering Sandia peak.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, young McCormick's mother, though worn and exhausted from sleepless vigil, remained at the search headquarters base today, maintaining that if her son were safe at all, he probably was marooned on an almost inaccessible ledge.

Searchers early this morning failed to find a trace of the McCormick youth either at the base of the precipitous mountain or at its top, which slopes gently eastward. This caused Gov. Clyde Tingley and other leaders of the search to believe it possible the youth might have gained some ledge from which he could not ascend or descend.

Governor Commands Search
Personally commanding the three-day search, Governor Tingley expressed determination that searchers of the rugged terrain would find the boy, whether alive or dead.

"That boy—his body—is in there somewhere, and we'll find him—we'll find him,"

Racked by anxiety, Mrs. Simms waited last night in Juan Tabo CCC camp, at the base of the mountains, hoping to learn that her 20-year-old son still lived.

She heard only that young Whitmer's body, skull crushed, had been found at the base of "The Shield," sheer rock face of North Sandia peak.

Of John Medill McCormick, there was no word.

The plan of today's search, Tingley said, is to surround the base of the peak, then work up and down, in the hope of finding young McCormick or his body on a ledge near where that of his companion came to rest.

"It will be hard going," said the governor, "the peak is as straight up and down as a concrete wall."

The mountain climber's urge for new conquests led to the tragic venture, friends revealed today.

Set Out Wednesday A. M.
The youths had climbed steep South Sandia peak, and the even more rigorous slopes of "The Needle," nearby. Wednesday morning they set out to try the face of North Sandia. When they failed to return a search was launched for them.

Young Whitmer's clothes were torn from his body and he lay in a crumpled heap at the foot of "The Shield." Searchers theorized that the two young climbers were bound together, alpine-fashion, by a rope, and that as Whitmer fell the strand slipped from his body, carrying his clothing with it.

The shock of Whitmer's fall, they believed, must have dislodged young McCormick, dashing him also from the precipitous wall to which he clung.

The cliff up which they started was "an impossible climb" in the opinion of John Matthews, veteran Albuquerque mountaineer.

"The ascent is safe," he said, "if you stick by the usual trail, but if you attempt to scale the face, there is no chance. You can go up but you can't get down. Your face would be against the rock and your only vision would be sideways."

The peak rises 10,800 feet above sea-level, and towers nearly a mile over the valley below.

Body Found at Dusk

Young Whitmer's body was found at dusk. Nowhere near was there a sign of young McCormick. Tingley called off the search until daylight to avoid the risk of additional lives.

Three gunshots, the universal signal of woodsmen, were the first indication that a discovery had been made last night.

Definite word was long in coming. Finally a messenger, exhausted by a five-mile scramble over the rough terrain, came to Juan Tabo with news one body had been found.

Second Tragedy

Seattle, June 23—(AP)—Tragedy again overtook the crack Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific "Olympian" train this morning when the westbound flyer collided head-on with an eastbound CCC train near Ingomar, Mont., killing one youth and injuring four trainmen and nine passengers.

J. S. Bahl, assistant general passenger agent here, said Robert Eckert, CCC mess car worker, was killed in the second Olympian accident within a week.

Last Sunday morning the Olympian plunged through a weakened bridge over Custer creek 26 miles east of Miles City, killing an estimated total of 47 persons.

'LOVE-FEAST' AT COUNCIL'S MEET FRIDAY EVENING

Heads of Almost Every City Department Patted on the Back

Every city officer and committee member who renders a service to the city, was lauded at the regular weekly meeting of the city council last evening. Mayor William Slothower and Commissioner Cal G. Tyler calling attention to the high caliber of individuals serving at the heads of the several city departments, and the members of the Dixon public library board were also highly commended by the mayor, who stated that they rendered a valuable service to the citizens of Dixon, serving without compensation for their efforts.

The filling of the annual reports of the various city departments, after auditors had examined the records, was the occasion for the words of praise. Aside from the mayor and commissioner, George Prescott added his praise to the chiefs of the police and fire departments. In his praise of Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber, who he stated was a conscientious and faithful head of the department, Mayor Slothower added:

"Each individual member of the police department is to be commended for his service to the city. Every member of the department had a high ideal of what a policeman should do and they are conscientious in the performance of their daily duties."

Fire and Policemen
Commissioner Tyler referred to the annual report of the police department, citing the fact that all automobiles stolen in Dixon during the year had been recovered and in addition, a number of cars stolen in other cities were found by Dixon police. This, he stated, was a record to be proud of and claimed by no other city in Illinois. He referred to the efficiency of the city's fire department, and stated that in extinguishing fires in the residential districts of the city, the department used the small "booster" hose in place of the regular hydrant size fire hose, thus reducing materially, the loss sustained through water damage. This method, he added, had been adopted by the larger departments. Mayor Slothower likewise added his words of commendation of the fire department, calling attention to the small fire loss for the fiscal year, slightly over $1,200, and the mem-

Concert Is Off

Because of flood conditions at the Pines state park, where three-year-old Phyllis Jackson of Wheaton was drowned early Friday morning, the picnic and massed concert of bandmen of northern Illinois, scheduled for tomorrow, has been indefinitely postponed. It was announced today.

River at Flood Stage

Rock river was at flood stage at noon today and was continuing to rise at a rapid rate, according to reports from the offices of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company. The river, which two days ago had gradually dropped to an ordinary summer stage, was today a raging current of muddy water.

At 9 o'clock last night the water began to recede very slowly and continued to drop until this morning at 4 o'clock. Since the early morning hour until noon today, the river had risen 18 inches and was continuing to rise. With the increased stage of Friday morning of 18 inches, the waters had climbed to a flood stage of over three feet in 48 hours, it was stated. The utilities company reported no notable disruption of electric service to its patrons.

Manager Frederick Broughton of the Dixon Home Telephone company stated at noon today that repair crews were rapidly restoring service to patrons whose telephones were rendered useless by Thursday and Friday night's storms. About 55 cases were repaired yesterday and last night's storm caused about 30 more disruptions of service, which were being restored today.

Camp Marooned

Parents of Girl Scouts who attempted to reach the Raiston camp this morning were forced to detour by way of Franklin Grove and Oregon. The Lost Nation road was flooded by creeks which overflowed their banks, but reports at noon stated that no inconvenience had been felt by the Girl Scout campers and their program was proceeding without interruption.

BRIDGES WASHED OUT; FARMS AND ROADS INUNDATED

A storm of cyclonic proportions, accompanied by a cloudburst with a reported rain fall of more than four inches, swept over Lee Center, Viola and Bradford townships last night causing damage estimated at thousands of dollars. The family of Leonard Dovak in Bradford township were forced from the farm home and hurriedly loaded a few household effects and fled to high ground. Many farmers were reported to have moved livestock from field and barns about midnight, taking them to higher ground.

At the Leroy Chaon farm in Lee Center township, a silo and a barn were blown down by the high wind. Lightning struck a power line pole and electric service was disrupted in several farm homes.

Sections of Amboy, where Green river was reported to have left its banks and in places this morning was almost a mile in width, basements were flooded and reports stated that the city's sewage system was badly crippled by the back waters. This morning the old race track at the fair grounds was under water which had crept back almost to the county highway department's machine sheds.

Several Bridges Out
The storm swept away several bridges which spanned streams which ordinarily have a small flow of water. One 50-foot span structure south of the Hill school in Lee Center township near the Bert Hill residence collapsed. Two other bridges in Lee Center were reported to have been damaged to such an extent that they are unsafe.

County Superintendent of Highways Fred Leake reported shortly before noon today that at least six bridges had been swept away in Lee Center and Viola townships, and it was feared that this number may be doubled when telephone connections, which were disrupted in many sections, are restored. In Viola township, Highway Commissioner Ed Whitsel, who was in Dixon this morning, reported four bridges impassable. One of these was swept from its foundations and collapsed into the swollen stream. Three others were rendered impassable when the abutments were undermined or washed away by the flood waters.

Roads Under Water
Throughout the three townships, many roads were under water at noon today, and the swirling flood water had washed away the gravel surfaces and left deep ditches in the roadways. Fields were flooded for miles along the section of the old swamp in the east end of Lee Center and entire crops were under water.

The Small Home

Principles That Govern Its Development

Public interest in the production of dwellings suitable and within a rental or purchase range of the majority of families in this country is becoming increasingly widespread. A good house at whatever price can be produced only by the combination of good architecture, well selected materials and honest building.

The small house never has been and should not be a large house compressed and trimmed down. The small house should be created not by determining what may be left out of the larger house but by analyzing the essential functional requirements of the home that is to be built, starting with the barest necessities and expanding as the circumstances permit.

In the design of small, low-priced houses, the principles of plan, efficiency, economical use of materials and proper equipment, become paramount. Every square foot of space, every odd corner, every length of pipe, every shingle that can be eliminated must be saved. At the same time, economies and efficiencies must not be obtained at a sacrifice of substantial construction or of minimum standards for convenience and comfort. Thus the planning of the small house becomes a real art—limited by the necessity for low cost yet very exacting in its requirements for proper arrangement and good design.

Electricity

The basic requirements of any electrification system is to provide artificial lighting or service to the point in the home where it is needed. An ample number of double convenience outlets is often recommended so that movable lamps and appliances may be utilized rather than permanently placed fixtures. This permits a system of great flexibility.

The life, safety and adequacy of a wiring system is largely dependent upon proper design to insure a sufficient number of branch circuits to prevent overloading, upon the use of quality materials of the proper type and upon workmanship in the installation.

In houses where electrical cooking facilities or similar heavy loading may occur, care should be taken that the service entrance wires are of a suitable size and a special service of suitable capacity must be run to the range or other appliances.

FHA DOES NOT LEND

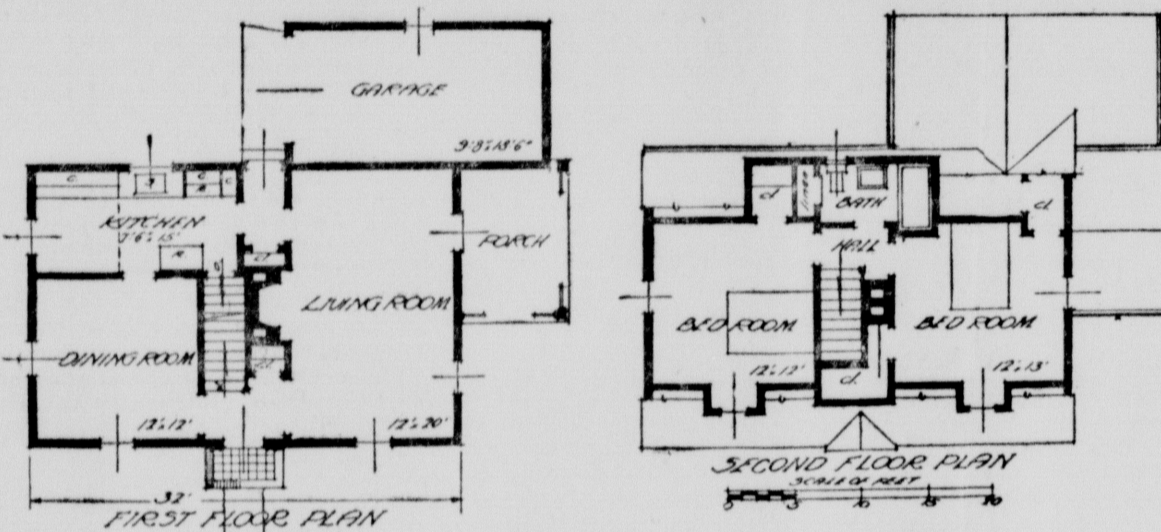

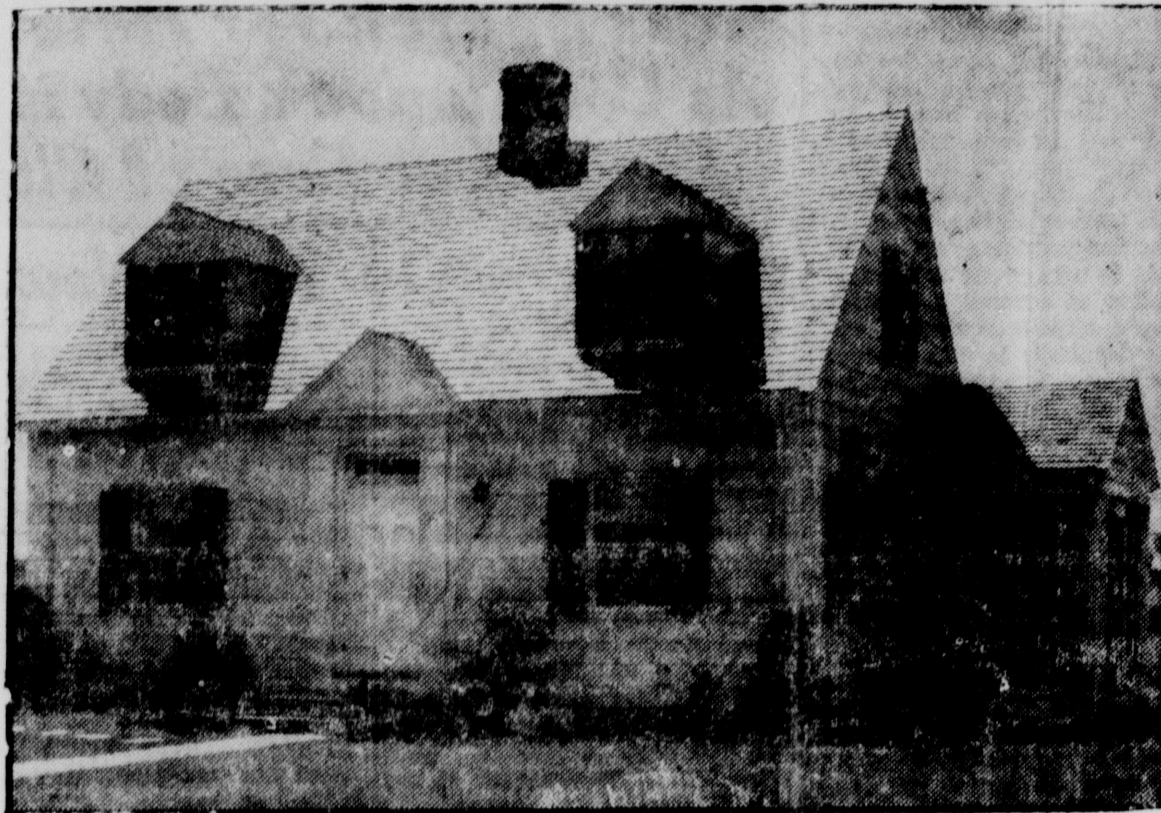

The Federal Housing Administration lends no money. It insures loans made by private financial institutions operating under provisions of the National Housing Act.

The Amazon river is so loaded with sediment that its waters can be detected by their discoloration 300 miles at sea.

It is estimated that the primitive herds of buffalo roaming the American plains numbered about 75,000 animals.

Toadstools in a garden usually indicate that the soil is too acid.

NEW ENGLAND COTTAGE

Architect R. C. Hunter of New York City, who designed this efficient New England cottage, has managed to crowd into a very limited space sizeable and well-proportioned rooms. Note the proportions of the kitchen. It is long and narrow, which makes for ease of working conditions. Also there is an entrance to the living room from the kitchen through a small entry, making it possible to use one end of the living room for dining if desired and releasing the dining room for other uses. The location of the garage is important and it is really just a step from the garage doors to the entry that leads to the kitchen basement and the living room.

CHURCHILL HITS CHAMBERLAIN'S WEAK POLICIES

London, June 24—(AP)—Britain's envoy to insurgent Spain was under orders today to bring to London an explanation from Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government for its unrelenting aerial attacks on British ships.

This step by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain to cope with a problem that has been a constant thorn in his side was disclosed yesterday in a tumultuous House of Commons session.

Chamberlain, however, reiterated his refusal to make reprisals for the attacks of fear of starting a European war. His stand created such a furore he scarcely could be heard. Amid the excitement three fist-shaking hecklers were ejected from the gallery.

The premier said he again had warned Franco, adding that he hoped it would "not be too late."

for the generalissimo to prevent further attacks.

To the cheers of the opposition, Conservative Winston Churchill, an opponent of Chamberlain's foreign policy, suggested the prime minister "use his personal influence with Mussolini" to halt the attacks.

The Tory rebel declared "Japan, Italy, Germany and the United States would not submit to this treatment, prolonged for months after month."

Garden Benches

By Elsa Rehmann

Wooden benches are nice in the garden. The type of the garden will determine the kind of bench—whether it should be hand-hewn and rugged or refined and finished with a smooth surface. The kind of garden will determine, too, the color to be used for painting the bench. A soft brown, a brown mixed with a bit of green, or a brown toned with grey so that it is like the color of the tree trunks is almost always good in the garden. French grey is often nice, especially with flowers of delicate color. A soft yellow is also good at times, and apple green is altogether delightful.

A bench, placed in some important spot—for instance at the end of the main path, acts as a pleasing terminal note for the garden vista. There it becomes an important feature of the garden's design. From this location, a full view of the garden spreads out.

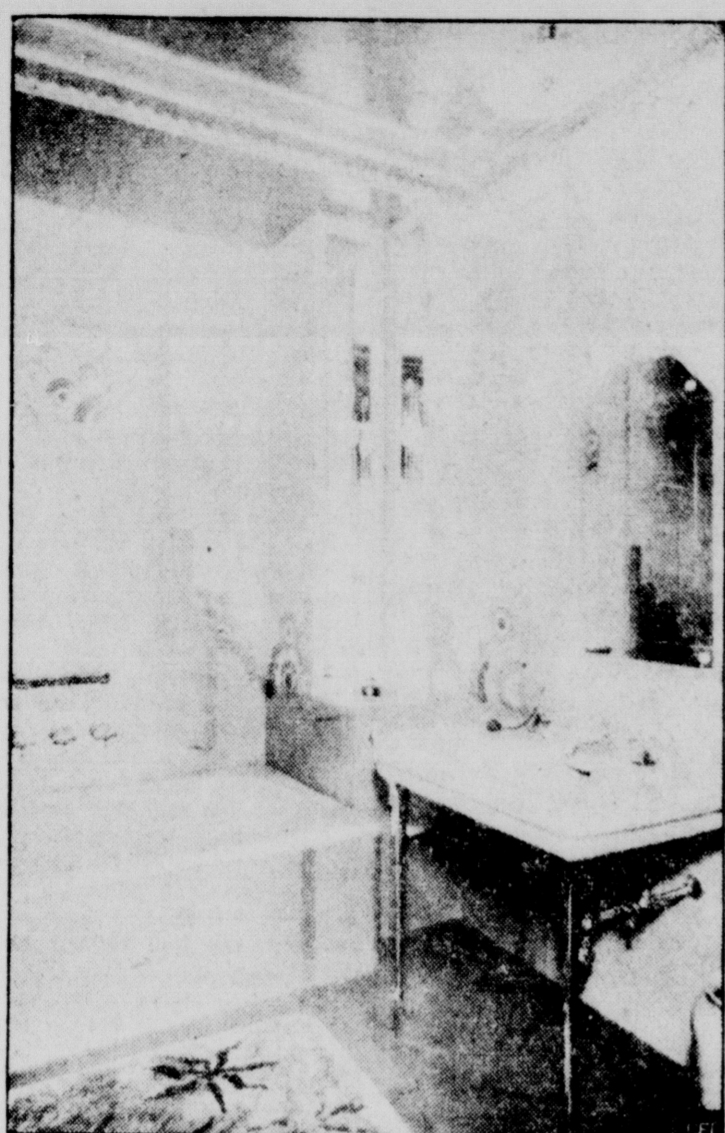

Sometimes it is nice to have a bench placed in a secluded corner where one might sit undisturbed and read.

If the bench is placed in a recess or niche, it may be bordered with flowers or with shrubs, or flanked by trees.

A low, broad seat and a slightly sloping back tend toward a comfortable seat. The bench should be wide enough for several people to sit together without crowding.

ARCHITECT IS AN ECONOMY

If you are remodeling your home and it is a sizable job, you will find the employment of a competent architect a great help and an economy in the long run.

This bath room decorated in the modern manner exemplifies the use of etched mirrors in the corners at the end of the tub. Bold conventional flower designs in brilliant colors are used against the walls. Gradation of color are used from floor to ceiling.

Obituary—William H. Barringer
William H. Barringer died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Noe, on the farm near Scarborough, Monday morning, June 20. Mr. Barringer was nearly 88 years of age, having been born September 20, 1850 at Ross Grove in De Kalb county. Both of his parents died when he was four years of age, and he, with the other two children of the family, were cared for by the Grandmother Barringer, who lived in Paw Paw. He attended the school of the community, including the East Paw Paw Classical Seminary, and worked on farms during the vacation time.

In 1881 he, in partnership with Philip Pierce, became successors to the firm of Palmer and Stetler in the drug business, which he conducted several years.

In 1881 Mr. Barringer was united in marriage with Miss Ada Hopps and to this union four children were born: Walter, Clifford, Frances (Mrs. George Houghtby) and Grace (Mrs. C. C. Noe). They resided on the farm north of town for many years and then became residents of Paw Paw for a time.

For the past few years he has not been in the best of health but has been up and about and a frequent visitor to our streets. A heart attack caused his sudden death.

The funeral services were held at the Presbyterian church on Wednesday afternoon, with Rev. Tarr, of the Scarborough Evangelical church officiating. Burial was in the family lot in Ellsworth cemetery.

MOTHERS WOULD JOIN

The Young Mothers Study Club has noted with interest the recent letters and editorials proposing a municipal swimming pool for the city of Dixon. As mothers of a growing generation we are anxious to promote what we feel would be a distinct benefit to the youth of Dixon. We realize the deep need of a strictly sanitary and carefully supervised pool. We should be glad to join with others in requesting the proper city officials to investigate the need and possible ways of obtaining such a pool.

HENRY F. BURDGE

(Contributed)

Henry Francis Burdige, Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Francis Burdige, Sr., was born in Holder, Ill. August 9, 1914 and passed away June 16, 1938 at Dixon following a motor accident, which occurred Thursday about 10:15 P. M.

Henry moved to Lee county with his parents when about 4 years old. He has lived in Dixon and Eldena since. He attended school in Dixon and was a member of the First Christian church of that place.

He was married to Margaret Irene Eberly September 21, 1933.

He leaves his wife and parents and the following sisters and brothers: Thomas Johnson, Dixon; Alma Johnson, Eldena; Irma Wicherts, Dixon; Beatrice Burdige, Dixon; Byron Burdige, Eldena; Earl Burdige, Dixon. Also two nieces and four nephews and a host of other relatives and friends.

Sometimes when the day is ended
And its round of duties done,
I watch at the western windows
The gleam of the setting sun.
When my heart has been unquiet
And its longing unobeyed,
By the day's vexatious trials
And cannot be reconciled,
I look on the slope of the mountains
And o'er the restless sea,
And I think of the beautiful city
That lies not far from me,
And my spirit is hushed in a moment
As the twilight falls tender and sweet.

And I cross in fancy the river,
And kneel at the Master's feet,
And I rest in the shade that there
Falleth
From the trees that with healing
Are rife—
That shadow the banks of the river
The river of water of life
And some times, when the day is ended,
And the duties he gave me are done
I shall watch at life's western windows
The gleam of the setting sun,
I shall fall asleep in the twilight
As I never have slept before.
To dream of the beautiful city,
Till I waken to sleep no more.
There will fall on my restless spirit
A hush, O, so wondrously sweet,
And I shall cross over the river,
To rest at the Master's feet.

SERVICE YARDS

It is desirable, when laying out your home, that a small service yard be set aside which will be readily accessible from the street, close to the kitchen and screened by shrubbery or trellises, where garbage and refuse cans may be placed.

A space for drying clothes should be in a convenient position to the kitchen or basement door.

Painting Linoleum

Old Floors May Be Refinished

In painting and enameling linoleum, all wax and oil polishes must be thoroughly removed from the surface of the linoleum. This is best done with either turpentine, benzene, alcohol or some of the floor cleaners or a scouring material.

Often the use of fine steel wool will remove the dirt that has been ground into the linoleum.

After the washing has been done and the linoleum cleaned, paint the linoleum a priming coat of good wall paint to which should be added a little floor varnish. When this is hard, finish with a high gloss floor or deck paint, spar or floor varnish, to which the needed coloring matter is added.

Use only the strongest colors obtainable or coach colors ground in Japan.

If a stippled effect is required, a light colored paint may be stippled on over a darker base or vice versa, by using a sponge dipped in the paint and applying over the solid coat in a stippled fashion.

NATIVE BRICK

In selecting the brick for a house, choose a type that is native to the country, if possible. Climatic conditions affect bricks materially, and better results will generally result by following this practice.

NO LOCKS

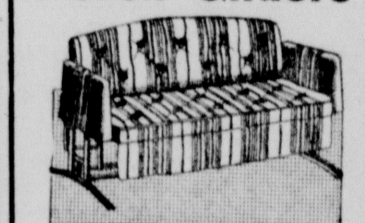

In houses where there are little children, the thumb bolts on bathroom doors should be of the type that can be opened from the outside with a key.

DIVERTING GAS TAX

Downstate road construction will be badly crippled if Chicago is allowed to divert any of its motor fuel tax income to relief purposes. This fact is just being realized and may stop any movement in the special session of the legislature toward diversion of motor fuel tax income.

At first it was thought that Chicago's allotment of the state gas tax belonged to the city and if Chicago wanted to use it for relief instead of for street improvements, that was Chicago's business and other communities were not concerned. Further study of the situation shows that other communities will be very seriously affected, because the money involved really comes out of the state treasury.

This situation grows out of the fact that in 1935 Congress passed a law providing that any state which authorized new diversion of highway revenues to other purposes might be penalized in its annual allotment of Federal Aid for road construction. The penalty is limited to one-third of the annual allotment.

The present yearly Federal Aid allotment to Illinois is about $5,100,000 for primary roads, and about $1,000,000 for secondary roads. One-third of this would be about $2,000,000. If this amount were to be deducted from the state's yearly road revenue, it would mean that many important downstate road construction projects would have to be postponed or abandoned.

That the Federal government means business is shown by the fact that maximum penalties have already been imposed upon Massachusetts and New Jersey, where serious diversions of road funds were made. Penalties have also been made upon Georgia and Maryland, but as the legislatures of those states are considering steps to pay back to the road funds the amounts which have been diverted to other purposes, the penalties have been suspended pending this action. If these amounts are not repaid, then the penalties will be applied.

If Chicago is allowed to divert its state gas tax funds, the state as a whole will be penalized as the Federal law permits no exceptions to be made.

The Illinois situation boils down to the unpleasant fact that if Chicago is allowed to divert motor fuel tax allotments to relief purposes, downstate communities will have to pay the bill in reduced Federal Aid funds. The whole scheme would amount to reducing the funds available for legitimate employment on street and road construction in order to put more men on the relief doles.

BE KIND TO ANIMALS

All the civilian populations that suffer in a war are not in the areas of battle. Take newspaper readers—as far removed from the scene, say, as the United States is from Spain.

The bare casualty figures encountered in the headlines every day have their own frightfulness, but there is another kind of reading that inflicts a special torture not so much on the heart as on the stomach.

A recent dispatch from the Samagosa serves as a case in point. It concerned a touching incident involving an insurgent officer and a Loyalist machine gun crew. The story told how the insurgents wiped the gun crew off the face of the earth and then discovered a large dog standing bravely by the silenced gun, growling his defiance.

An officer who liked animals forbade his men to shoot the dog, so it had to be driven away with sticks and stones while the insurgents took the position. But the dog came back again, whimpering this time, and it was found to be wounded. The men tenderly dressed the wounds, made friends with the dog, and wound up by adopting it as a mascot.

How touching! What a prince that officer was! How noble of the men to confine their slaughter to their brothers! How reminiscent of the story is of some of the pap that used to come out of the propaganda machines in 1917! How senseless, how twisted, how revolting!

HOW—AGAIN—TO BE HAPPY

Recipes for happiness seem to be a dime a dozen these days. So many have so little to recommend them that a definite editorial obligation exists to call attention to the ones that do seem to have extraordinary merit.

Your attention is directed to the advice of Mrs. Christine Morton of the New York State College of Economics. Mrs. Morton has found the key to happiness in old age.

Devote more of your time during the so-called active years, says Mrs. Morton, to practicing up for the leisure you're going to have so much of, say, after the age of 70.

Mrs. Morton's idea may not have laid claim to the heart with such violence a few months ago. Something in the air about this time, however—an occasional warm something-or-other suggestive of approaching dog days—forces the mind to the conclusion that a more commendable idea hasn't been proposed in many and many a year.

Now, in these summer months of the year and the summer months of your life, is the time to bone up on your solitaire. Get yourself into condition for hammock-swinging. Keep practicing your whittling. Train for your siestas now.

Mrs. Morton has not only hit on a recipe for happiness in old age, but for happiness in all the years that precede it.

Octagon House

BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Story So Far:

Asey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, investigating the murder of Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office mural has enraged Quano-net. She was killed by a left-handed blow from the knife of her sister, Pam Frye. Interested parties are: Tim Carr, once married to Marina; Roddy Strutt, whose alibiing plane crash was deliberate; Peggy Boone, an artist; Jennings, an irate plumber; and persons unknown who burned down the Frye's barn, destroyed Jack Lorne's mural sketches and defaced the mural itself. Missing is a $50,000 lump of ambergris belonging to Pam. Then Roddy is killed.

Chapter 44
A Near Job

Two hours later, in the enormous living room at the Strutt house, Asey puffed on his pipe and listened wearily to the argument on between Dr. Cummings and Carveth on the subject of Roddy's death.

"Mr. Strutt," Cummings dropped his angry bellow and spoke in a voice so faintly controlled that it startled even Asey. "I know that Roddy was your favorite nephew, and I know you've been upset during the last day or so, and I know you've suffered a tremendous blow tonight. But Roddy didn't kill himself. He was murdered."

"Roddy was driven to suicide!" Carveth said.

"Look," Cummings voice soared again. "I've tried to explain that I know how you feel, but I know the facts in the case. That's my job. I've spent the last couple of hours just finding out facts. Roddy was murdered."

"The boy was driven to suicide," Carveth said with stubborn persistence. "Everyone knows that suicides always go into a garage, shut the door and start the car."

"But they don't lock the garage doors on the outside!" Cummings said. "With a padlock!"

"Everyone knows it," Strutt went on, "and that's just what happened here. Roddy was so intimidated and so overwrought by these threats—why, he went out of his mind! He wasn't responsible for what he did."

"Carbon monoxide," Cummings said, "is a favorite with suicides. But Roddy was killed. He went into the garage, and someone—either someone with him or someone waiting for him—hit him on the base of the skull, hard enough to stun him. Then they moved him so that his head rested under the exhaust of his roadster, and they started the roadster, and then they went out, snapping the padlock after them. Certainly you don't think that Roddy locked that padlock, and then crawled back through a crack?"

"What do you think?" Carveth appealed to Asey.

"I don't think," Asey said, "that I could ever prove it was suicide."

"Oh, I don't know what to do!" Carveth seemed to crumple back into his chair. "I don't know what to do, or what to think!"

Dr. Cummings, too thoroughly annoyed with Strutt to stop and be sympathetic, hammered away at his point.

"Sheer reason," he said, "should convince you—"

Asey motioned for him to be silent. This was no time to attempt to reach any possible better judgment Carveth might possess.

"I wonder, Mr. Strutt," he said, "embarking on his tentative plan, about the newspaper angle. We kept this quiet up to now, but before long the reporters'll come. There's a lot in town, and you'll have to see 'em, and talk with 'em—How about letting Elliott and me write some sort of statement for you?"

"Oh, would you?" Carveth asked eagerly.

The doctor raised his eyebrows and looked at Asey. That man could get more places with a little honey and molasses!

"But you got to consider," Asey went on, "the papers' angle, the position you and your family hold. I wonder if, on the whole, it mightn't be wise to go against your wishes, but if we admit this is suicide, wouldn't it sort of be a—"

"Blenish," the doctor suggested. "Blenish, a stain on the family escutcheon."

"Just so. Now, you knew that your nephew was involved in the Marina Lorne business, didn't you, Mr. Strutt?"

Carveth gradually admitted that he had guessed it.

"An' if we say that he committed suicide, then—well, folks'll start talkin' an' sayin' that Roddy probably had reason to kill himself. People are always awful willing to believe the unpleasantest things they can about anyone who kills himself. They want a reason, an' I'm afraid that Marina's murder might turn out to be it. But if we say Roddy was murdered, people will be sorry. Praps sorry enough to forget some of the un—pleasant incidents, an' all."

Carveth thought for a moment. "By George," he said, "I never thought of that! I think you're right. You and Elliott fix up something—perhaps this will be the way to get Jennings. Yes, yes, indeed."

"Now why," Cummings asked as he and Asey walked down the hall together a few minutes later,

"why did you twist him over to our way of thinking, just to let him go off on a tangent about Jennings? He'll talk with Hanson, and you can't tell what will happen. You're sure Jennings didn't kill him, aren't you?"

Asey nodded. "But I don't want two conflictin' stories on this," he said, "and I do want Hanson an' Carveth to provide a distractin' element. Anyone would do, but Jennings is handiest."

"In other words, you want the right hand in action, while the left brings forth rabbits. I see. Asey, are you sure about Jennings? He certainly menaced magnificent last night, if you can believe Carveth. And biffing Roddy over the head has a touch of Jennings about it."

"It's neat," Asey said. "The whole thing is neat, so much neater than I'd imagined at first that it makes my spine curl."

"Can you alibi Jennings?" the doctor asked, as he paused to pick up his black bag from the hall table.

"I can," Asey said. "I done some phonin' an' checkin' while you was busy out in the garage. Jennings is alibied by time, an' the Methodist minister. You see, Roddy'd disappeared just a little while before Elliott an' I come here, that was around seven-thirty this evening, or maybe a bit after. At just about that same time, the minister was pickin' up Jennings, about 100 yards from the Pochet hospital. At a quarter to eight, Lorne claims that Jennings was spankin' him. So you see, Jennings didn't have time to come here. The nurses can prove he was in his room at the hospital about fifteen minutes before the minister picked him up. They got him on a chart. There you are."

A Red Herring

"But where will Jennings be, when Carveth and Hanson get going?"

"He's safe. I'll get him out, if they get him in too deep. I want a red herring here, an' it won't harm him to be it. He can take it. An' I hope he'll keep everyone busy—"

"While you sneak off and ferret out the murderers?" Cummings asked.

"The murderer," Asey corrected. "Just one."

"Forgotten Marina?"

"Nope," Asey said. "Oh, I know what you're goin' to say, Doc. The first murder was a stabbin' an' this is a carbon monoxide by force, an' they don't seem alike. But they're alike in one thing. The knife they used was Pam's, an' the idea here, I think, is for us to land on Jennings."

Cummings set his bag down. "Then you think that Roddy was being menaced, but not by Jennings?" he asked.

"I thought," Asey admitted, "all this menac'n was a yarn, at first. Now I wonder if perhaps Roddy wasn't been threatened all right. An' of course when Jennings turned up last night, naturally the Strutts thought that he was the menacer. Only he wasn't."

The doctor sighed. "It gives you an unknown menace to start with, I suppose, but I don't feel that's much of a foundation. How would anyone know that Jennings was the basher who went after you and the rest?"

"They wouldn't have to know," Asey said, "about that business in the woods, or any specific basbin'. Jennings has a reputation for violence. Everyone knows what he thinks an' how he feels about Roddy. An' they know he's mad at the mural. He's a nice, likely person to pick out, just as Pam was. Are you ready? Then we'd better get goin'!"

Elliott met them as they walked down to the garage where the doctor's car was parked.

"Hanson's come and gone," he said, "and he left two messages for Asey. That he'd done all the checking, and it was okay. And what you wanted is on its way to you from Boston. Look, why did you check on me? Don't look so guileless, Hanson made a break!"

"The nicest people," Asey said, "do the strangest things. Elliott, you got to compose a statement for the press—an' then will you hang around here? Carveth's in a state, an' if you're helpful enough, you might get a new school. Besides, someone ought to be here who can make decisions."

The Congressman took copious notes on the backs of envelopes. "There," he said, "Where'll you be?"

"Octagon House," Asey said. "Got anything, Lane?" he asked the officer who came over to them.

"No prints on the padlock, the car keys, the wheel, door, or anything. Everything's clean. Wiped off. He got hit with that piece of wood you thought, but that's clean, too. And the padlock was not forced. Asey, I don't get this at all!"

Monday: Asey reproaches himself.

The water of an "overland" flood along the lower Mississippi river travels about one-third as fast as the river itself.

Neptune's satellite is supposed to be about as large as our moon, and it moves around the planet in a little less than six days.

(Editor's Note—The Brass Ring herewith tendered to Morris Ernst, is good for one free ride on The Washington Merry-Go-Round, and is granted only to those who can ride the Merry-Go-Round without losing their balance.)

Washington—Morris Ernst, the CIO lawyer who has been bringing such squeals of rage from the Czar of Jersey City, is the greatest crusader for the Bill of Rights since the younger days of Louis D. Brandeis.

There is hardly a case of suppressed civil liberties anywhere in the country that he has not championed, yet he also represents some of the biggest firms on Wall Street. He has amassed a considerable fortune, yet he dips into his own pocket to finance most of the human rights cases which he champions.

Finally, he is branded a Communist by Mayor Hague, but is so bitterly opposed by more radical elements within the CIO that he was dismissed as attorney for the Newspaper Guild (which he helped to found) because he was too conservative for left-wing leaders.

Ernst is one of the most versatile lawyers in New York City. He is attorney for the "New Yorker," the "Nation" and the "Survey" magazines; for Edna Ferber, Heywood Brown, Charles G. Norris, the Authors League and the Dramatists Guild; for Doubleday, Doran, Simon and Schuster, the Vanguard Press for Maurice Evans, Margalo Gilmore, and June Walker. At the same time he is attorney for the Morgenthau family, for giant Kuhn, Loeb and Company, is a member of the New York State Banking Commission, and put across a billion dollar reorganization of the mortgage banks for the New York Insurance Department.

Despite all these interests, he makes a solemn vow every summer—and keeps it—to spend three months at Nantucket, where he sails a boat, makes furniture and writes fiction.

HAGUE VS. ERNST

Inside story of the Ernst-Mayor legal battle is that Lee Pressman, general counsel for the CIO, long has been opposed to Ernst, drafted him to do a job on Mayor Hague because he thought Ernst would use plenty of fireworks.

At first, however, Ernst did just the opposite. He sat down with Mayor Hague's lawyers and tried to work out a compromise to end the entire dispute without a court fight. In these private discussions Hague's attorneys agreed to yield on picketing, the right of unions to organize, and the right to hire halls for meetings. The only CIO demands not agreed to were open air meetings and the use of placards in picketing.

Before the negotiations got any further, however, the Mayor got sore at the trek of Congressmen invading his domain and called off the entire compromise.

So Ernst brought up his heavy artillery. But before he did so, Morris had a long talk with the President, told him in some detail how he was planning to put Roosevelt's lie chairman of the Democratic National Committee on the spot. The President made no objection.

Later, however, he did. After Ernst had taunted Hague with the question of whether or not Senator Barkley of Kentucky should accept support from the United Mine Workers, a CIO organization, he got a phone call from Jimmy Roosevelt.

The Ernst parage was great up to that point, Jimmy intimated, but in the future leave out Barkley and other Democratic leaders.

JEWISH REFUGEE

Probably Ernst inherited his crusading instinct from his father, a Jewish refugee who fled from Poland, Austria-Hungary (now Czechoslovakia) during the troubles of 1848. Morris Ernst was born in Uniontown, Alabama, just 50 years ago. His father ran a shirt factory and for two years Morris worked in it after graduating from Williams.

Later he ran a furniture manufacturing shop for four years, and never has been able to give it up. Every summer he turns out exquisite beds and tables, and his wife complains that in New York he will sometimes spend half a day searching through hardware stores for some particular kind of saw.

Meanwhile Ernst studied law at night, and it was not until he was nearly 30 that he finally began law practice.

Ernst's public service dates back to 1914, when he organized the first public employment bureau in the United States for Governor Glynn of New York. But it was not until the Hoover Administration, when he secured the duty of the long barred Count Kallai of Hungary, that Ernst really became known as a civil liberties champion.

INCREASED GRANT OF POWER SEEMS LIKELY FOR IERC

Chances Appear Bright For Passage of the Lager Bill

Springfield, Ill., June 25—(AP)—An increased grant of power to the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission appeared more than ever to be in the legislative cards today.

The Lager bill, favored by the commission and part of the nine-point Democratic "harmony" program, stood at passage stage in the House with chances bright for its approval in the lower chamber Monday night. It then would have to run the Senate gauntlet before final adjournment of the two special sessions Thursday.

Democrats pushed the bill this week over strenuous objections from Republican leaders and the state association of county supervisors, who are ex-officio poor overseers.

Whereas it now merely is an agency for distributing state and Federal relief money, the IERC under the Lager bill would be empowered to make rules and regulations and to enforce them by withholding state aid from local communities that failed to comply.

Original Authority Withdrawn
As originally drawn, the Lager bill would have allowed the commission to take over full relief machinery in any non-complying county or township, but this authority was stricken on the order of Democratic representatives in a conference.

To the commission's claim that it could not correct relief abuses without more authority than it now has, spokesmen for the supervisors' organization replied that the present "home rule" system was basically sound, but that local officials needed more funds for investigations. Administrative costs now are limited to five per cent of relief funds expended in downstate counties, but the allowance would be doubled by the Lager measure.

Another feature that remained intact in the amended bill was authority for the commission to earmark, with the governor's consent, state relief funds to pay local governments' share of Federal public works projects. City officials of Decatur and Belleville were among those advocating this authority.

Monthly Checkups
Monthly checkups of county relief spending by the IERC and the state auditor also are provided in the bill.

Two other Democratic bills affecting administration of public assistance remained on the legislature's calendar.

One, by Rep. Thomas A. Bolger, (D-McHenry), would place appointment of county old age pension superintendents in the state welfare department, rather than in county boards of supervisors. Republicans attacked this measure also, but it was advanced to passage stage in the House along with the rest of the Democratic program.

In the Senate, a bill by the Hon. Homer H. Harper, Senator Robert M. Harper of East Moline, would place blind pension control under Federal social security regulations. It was on second reading, however, and was accorded less chance of passage. In the same category were bills in both Houses to liberalize old age pensions to a dollar a day minimum.

County Treasurer Removed by Board

Marion, Ill., June 25—(AP)—The Williamson county board of commissioners late yesterday removed County Treasurer A. O. Ledbetter from office and named Lee Calhoun, former deputy county clerk, to the vacancy.

The board passed a resolution condemning Ledbetter for paying $12,247.50 on a group of county blind pension warrants. The resolution termed the warrants "worthless," using unparaphrased money from four other county funds.

Ledbetter asserted the warrants bore a clause which stated they were "payable from any unappropriated fund" of the county. The commissioners claimed such payment could not have been made without their authorization.

GOOD THOUGHTS
You can help your fellow men. You must help your fellow men. But the only way you can help him is by being the noblest and the best man that it is possible for you to be.
—Phillips Brooks.

You cannot make Christ known if you do not know Him.
—Bishop Johnston.

Would you win all the world for Christ?
One way there is and only one;—
You must live Christ from day to day.
And see His will be done . . .

But who lives Christ must tread His way.
Leave self and all the world behind
Press ever up and on, and serve
His kind with single mind.
—John Oxenham.

When mortals learn to love right when they learn that man's highest happiness, that which has most of heaven in it, is in blessing others, and self-immolation—they will obey both the old and the new commandment, and receive the reward of obedience.
—Mary Baker Eddy.

And this commandment have we from him. That he who loveth God love his brother also.

SECOND PROTEST OVER SLAPPING INCIDENT MADE Shanghai, June 25—(AP)—The second diplomatic action within four days over the reported slapping of a United States citizen by a Japanese sentry was registered with representatives of the Tokyo government today.

United States Consul Louis H. Gouley, at Tsingtao, Shantung province, reported to the state department that a sentry struck the wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, the naval officer who figured in the famous Honolulu "Massie" case of 1932.

Mrs. Massie was returning to Tsingtao after having visited her husband aboard the U. S. gunboat Tulsa, according to reports reaching her, and landed at a Japanese-controlled pier. She was escorted by two sailors.

Challenged by the sentry, she failed to reply, it was said, and did not understand the Japanese language.

The sentry then slapped her. The only explanation of the action reaching here was that the sentry had mistaken her for a Russian.

(Mrs. Massie is the former Florence Storms of Chewelah, Wash. She was married in March, 1937, to Lieut. Massie, who in 1934 was divorced from Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie. He and three others were tried in 1932 for the killing of the Hawaiian Kahahawai, who it was charged, attacked Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie. He was convicted of manslaughter and the sentence was commuted to one hour.)

Wednesday United States Consul John M. Allison at Nanking protested that J. C. Thompson, of New Brunswick, N. J., had been slapped by a sentry.

Copperheads—

tions is entirely changed. Its recent decisions are eloquent testimony of a willingness to collaborate with the two other branches of government to make democracy work.

Calls Foes "Copperheads" His address was sprinkled with pungent thrusts at his opponents. At one point, he asserted that "copperheads" had waged a "concentric campaign of defeatism" last year in an effort to stop governmental reform.

"And you will remember," he continued, "that it was the copperheads who—in the days of the Civil War, the war between the states—tried their best to make President Lincoln give up the fight and let the nation remain split in two and return to peace—yes, peace at any price."

Even though a few persons "are tired or frightened by the inescapable pace of this modern world," he commented, government can not "take a holiday of a year, or a month or even a day" from its efforts "to meet continuing problems."

Turning to a discussion of politics near the conclusion of his 30-minute talk, Roosevelt drew a line between liberalism and conservatism.

For "New Remedies" He said the former recognize that "the new conditions throughout the world call for new remedies."

"Those of us in America who hold to this school of thought insist that these new remedies can be adopted and successfully maintained in this country under our present form of government if we use government as an instrument to provide these remedies," he continued, x x x

"The opposing or conservative school of thought, as a general proposition, does not recognize the need for government itself to step in and take action to meet these new problems."

Although making it emphatically clear that he felt free to make known his feelings in any contest between representatives of these schools of thought, Roosevelt said he would not "indicate a preference in a state primary merely because a candidate, otherwise liberal in outlook, has conscientiously differed with me on any single issue."

Expressed Concern Then, in a statement which made some listeners think of charges which have been brought against Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, N. J., the President said he was concerned about the attitude of candidates and their sponsors "with respect to the rights of American citizens to assemble peaceably and to express publicly their views and opinions on important social and economic issues."

"There can be no constitutional democracy in any community which denies to the individual his freedom to speak and worship as he wishes," he said. "The American people will not be deceived by anyone who attempts to suppress individual liberty under the pretense of patriotism."

Roosevelt mentioned no names in that connection, but many listeners recalled that Rep. O'Connell (D-Mont.) Norman Thomas and others have denounced Hague in similar language for denying them permits to speak in Jersey City.

The President turned over to the justice department charges from several organizations and individuals that Hague had violated civil liberties guaranteed by the constitution.

Praised Congress When Roosevelt turned to discussion of activities of the 75th congress, he said that although it "left many things undone," it had "achieved more for the future good of the country than any congress did between the end of the World War and the spring of 1933."

High on his list of the legislators' "more important" achievements, the president mentioned the farm and wage-hour bills and the resolution creating a committee to study monopoly.

Saying the wage-hour bill ranked with the social security act as a far-sighted program, he added:

"Do not let any calamity howling executive with an income of $1,000 a day, who has been turning his employees over to the government relief rolls in order to preserve his company's undistributed reserves, tell you—using his stockholders' money to pay the postage for his personal opinions—that a wage of $11 a week is going to have a disastrous effect on all American industry."

Fortunately, the president said, that type of executive is rare. Instead, he added, "I can see signs of getting more help in the future from many who have fought against all progress with tooth and nail in the past."

After asking capital and labor to stand together to resist wage cuts, Roosevelt cited reports that two United States Steel subsidiaries had cut steel prices.

"I was gratified to know that this reduction involved no wage cut," he said. "Every encouragement ought to be given to industry which accepts a large volume and high wage policy."

Others "Mistaken" Referring to "mistakes" he said had been made last year, the executive added that leaders of private enterprise, after pleading for a curtailment of government spending, "made the mistake of increasing their inventories too fast and setting many of their prices too high for their goods to sell."

"Some labor leaders goaded by decades of oppression of labor, made the mistake of going too far," he added. "They asked employers not only to bargain with them but to put up with jurisdictional disputes at the same time."

"Government too made mistakes—mistakes of optimism in assuming that industry and labor would themselves make no mistakes—and government made a mistake of timing in not passing a farm bill or a wage hour bill last year."

The president said that present economic conditions now are far better than "in the terrible winter of 1932-33." Although it is too early to give more than an estimate, he said he hoped for a $60,000,000,000 national income this year, compared with $70,000,000,000 last year and $30,000,000,000 in 1932.

Little Comment With most legislators at home, there was little capital comment on Roosevelt's speech.

Senator King (D-Utah) said that many of the president's statements were not justified "by conditions past or present." Senator Hatch (D-NM) asserted that the president made some very final statements, especially in stressing cooperation between capital, labor and government for the benefit of all.

A group of high-ranking industrialists, here to discuss the coming monopoly investigation with government officials, listened to the president's address.

One government official said afterward that most of the group thought the speech "augurs well for government-business cooperation."

Those at the meeting included Edward R. Stettinius, chairman of United States Steel; M. B. Folsom, treasurer of Eastman Kodak; Clarence Francis, president of General Foods; A. D. Whitledge, of Dun & Bradstreet; S. Clay Williams, chairman of the board of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.; Fred R. Adams, chairman of the executive committee of Air Reduction Corporation; and Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears Roebuck.

The businessmen had gathered at the home of Richard C. Patterson, assistant secretary of commerce, to talk over the monopoly study informally with government economists.

bers of the department were commended for the efficient services. The mayor did not lose sight of other departments of the city and expressed his praise of the city clerk, city treasurer, and members of the library board, adding that the city of Dixon was fortunate in having faithful and responsible officials of their caliber. Almost all of the heads of city departments were thus praised for their services.

Contracts Awarded At the business session of the council meeting contracts were awarded for four public improvements, the bids having been received at the meeting one week ago. Contracts awarded were as follows:

Semi-monthly bills totalling $3,386.04 were ordered paid.

Lowden, who celebrated his 77th birthday January 26, entered St. Luke's hospital June 10 for a minor ailment and general check-up of his physical condition, the physician said.

NEW BRIDGE TO BE STREAMLINED, SAYS SMITH

Director of Works and Building Tells of Dixon Structure

Springfield, Ill., June 25—In keeping with streamlining trends in motor cars, airplanes, trains, and practically everything else from toothbrushes to skyscrapers, Illinois is soon to have its first streamlined bridge.

The proposed "streamliner," according to F. Lynden Smith, Director of the Department of Public Works and Buildings, is to be the new U. S. Highway 30 bridge over the Rock river at Galena Avenue, Dixon.

The new structure, on which bids will be taken July 8, will be distinguished by the sweeping lines of its superstructure and by striking pylons surmounted with a roadway lighting system. It is to replace the old steel truss bridge built in 1885 by the city of Dixon.

Flanked with elevated lights rising on either side of its eight piers the bridge will be visible for many miles at night, and its daytime beauty will be enhanced by ornamental grillwork on the handrails and balusters and by the modernistic design of its sixteen pylons planned by Ralph Harris, State highway architect.

8-Span Structure The old structure, according to G. F. Birch, state bridge engineer in charge of structural design, is only 20 feet wide between trusses and has for a number of years been "woefully inadequate" to cope with heavy traffic on U. S. Highway 30. The new bridge will be an eight-span structure of continuous reinforced concrete deck girder design, 738 feet in length, and will have a 44 foot four lane roadway with a six foot walk on either side.

Into its construction will go 8293 yards of concrete, 589 tons of steel, 1228 feet of ornamental rail, 18,700 feet of timber foundation piling, and 840 feet of concrete piling.

The bridge site, two blocks east of the Peoria Avenue Bridge, completed in 1930 by the city of Dixon, and west of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company Dam is near the old location of Dixon's Ferry, an early Illinois trading post which figured prominently in the Black Hawk War. In order to accommodate the wide south approach to the bridge the city of Dixon has agreed to move the Chamber of Commerce and bus station building, which stands on the east side of the present south approach.

TIGERS SURGE OUT OF SIXTH ON WIN SPREE

Have Won Thirteen of Last Twenty Contests

BY SID FEDER

Associated Press Sports Writer
American league managers better get out their shootin' irons.
Mickey Cochran's Tigers are on the prowl at last, full of red meat and ripping things apart.
Those "boom boom" boys Roundhouse Rudy York and Hammering Hank Greenberg, and the always dependable Charley Gehrig, have hooked up with something new in the way of a batting punch in Chet Laabs—and there isn't a fence in the loop safe from their cannon shots.

Relying almost exclusively on this clouting quartet, Iron Mike's Detroiters have surged up out of sixth place and into the first division. They've won 13 of their last 20 games. Four of these wins have come in a row, the latest a 12-8 knock-down drag-out brawl with the Yankees yesterday.

The Tigers have walloped 28 homers in their 20-game drive, 10 of them by Roundhouse Rudy, seven by Big Hank, and four each by Laabs strong-silent Charley.

Three Got Homers
Take yesterday, Lou Gehrig Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon each parked one out of the lot. Then Hank took a hand in the proceedings, clouted one with two aboard and another with one mate on base and drove in a total of five runs. His two round-trippers tied him with York and Jimmy Foss at 20—all in the big league home-run derby.

Foss's bat was quieted yesterday by rookie Johnny Humphries, who set the Boston Red Sox down with a half dozen hits, and pitched the Indians to a 7-6 decision. This victory, coupled with the Yanks' defeat, left the Tribe with a 4½-game lead in the American league race, while the Tigers, in fourth place, were only two games out of second.

The Athletics-Chicago White Sox tilt was rained out, and the Senators-St. Louis Browns engagement was re-scheduled for a double-header Sunday.
In the National league, the Giants remained just a game-and-a-half in front of the rude Reds from Cincinnati. Bill Terry's outfit, aided by Master Melvin Ott's game-breaking homer in the eighth, topped the collapsible Cubs from Chicago, 5-3. The Reds met stubborn opposition from the Phillies, but Ernie Lombardi took care of things with three hits, driving in three runs, for a 6-4 win.

Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons hurled a nine-inning and led the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 5-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals. The Pirates-Boston Bees game was sent back to Sunday to become part of another of those synthetic double-headers.

TOLEDO OPENS 3-GAME SERIES WITH INDIANS

Indianapolis, June 25.—(AP)—Toledo opened a three game series with the league leading Indianapolis Indians today, happy to get away from the booming bats of the last place Louisville Colonels.
The Colonels belied their position in the standings yesterday by unleashing their second successive attack of 20 hits or more. This time it was more, 24 to be exact, that buried the Mudhens under a 19 to 8 total. On Thursday the Colonels made an even 20 hits to win 13 to 3. Leo Ogorek led yesterday's long distance clouting with a homer, triple and a single. Johnny Strum had four singles.

Meanwhile, Minneapolis halted Kansas City's victory streak at seven and dropped the Blues to third place by winning 6 to 4 behind Belve Bean. St. Paul took the runner up shot on the eve of its important series with Kansas City when it defeated Milwaukee 6 to 2. Indianapolis remained a game ahead of the Apostles by pounding out a 10 to 1 decision over Columbus. Six runs in the third inning gave Johnny Niggeling all the working advantage he needed for his eighth victory of the year.

Columbus opposed Louisville and Minneapolis faced Milwaukee in today's other games.

Brownies Ready To Bid For Lead Of Three-1 Loop
Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—Springfield's Brownies appear ready to make their bid for first place in the Three-1 League, a position that Evansville's Bees have held successfully virtually all along.
The Brownies, who took over the runner-up spot Thursday when Moline suffered a double reverse at the hands of the leaders, added another victory to their string yesterday by trouncing Cedar Rapids, 9 to 1. However, they failed to dent the four-game lead Evansville holds. The Bees trimmed Clinton, 7 to 5, despite the fact they were held to seven hits.

A six-run spree in the fifth inning helped Decatur to a 9 to 5 decision over Moline's faltering Ploymen. Waterloo won a slugfest from Bloomington, 11 to 8.

Rochelle, Dixon Both First Year Teams of Illinois State Loop

Cummings Promises the Bleachers Within Week or Two

Rochelle's Hubs, like the Dixon Knacks, first year members in the Illinois State league and both have had their troubles winning, but tomorrow afternoon they will cross bats to see which club is the strongest.

Mau, pitching star and southpaw of Rochelle's team, who is a graduate of the University of Iowa, had major league scouts on his trail trying to get him to sign a major league contract but refused to accept a position with a Rochelle firm.

He has pitched sterling ball for the Rochelle team but poor support and failure of his mates to hit behind him when hits would have scored runs have accounted for Rochelle's defeats. The Knacks hope he hasn't the stuff that Knater of West Brooklyn had last Sunday. Mau will be trying to duplicate West Brooklyn's rout of the Knacks.

Pitcher Not Selected
Manager Bert Cummings is undecided when he will pitch tomorrow as Prestegard hasn't been feeling well lately. Ole will play second, so either Miller or Henry will be on the mound for Dixon. Miller looked good in the one ball game he pitched against Ohio and he may get the call. Bus Carlson who has been improving in each ball game he plays, will be seen on third base with Earl Flanagan at shortstop. Carlson has been hitting the ball hard and is one of the Knacks' leading hitters. He is one of the best young players Dixon has put on the field in years.

The Dixon pilot also announced today that plans for the bleachers have been completed and will be erected in a week or two. The team and all connected with the Knacks wish to thank all the fans of the community who have given them their fine support and hope another large crowd will be present at Reynolds field Sunday at 2:30 p. m. No admission will be charged.

List of Unbeaten Softball Teams Getting Shorter

Five undefeated softball teams of the city league will be engaged this week in a more concentrated struggle for the enviable top position in which the field will be narrowed still further by next Friday night.

Leading off on Monday night the California Market team will tangle with the Fulfs while Dixon Fruit Co. also unbeaten will clash with the Plowman's Specials. Wednesday, June 29, the Home Lumber Co. will face Keller's, while the formidable Black Farm crew meets the I. N. U. Co. On Friday, July 1, the improving Telegraph team will enjoy its best chance to win in three weeks when it meets the Medusa Co. ten while in the second game the Knacks will attempt to knock the Reynolds Wire Co. out of first place.

WILLIAMS HAS BATting LEAD

Also Maintains His Home Run Activity During Week

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—Ted Williams, the Minneapolis slugger, not only continued his home run activity over the week but also made his share of ordinary hits to take over the batting leadership in the American association.

Vern Washington, of St. Paul, who is on the sidelines with a shoulder fracture, held a mark of 426, but had only been in 34 games as compared with 55 by Williams whose average read .356. The mark which includes games of last Wednesday night, was four points better than that of Fred Berger of St. Paul, the week's runner up on the basis of semi-official statistics.

Other leaders: George Archie, Toledo, 344; Joe Gallagher, Kansas City, 342; Lynn King, Columbus, 342; Parke Coleman, Toledo, 341; Glen Chapman, Indianapolis, 340; Dan Taylor, Columbus, 338; Eddie Miller, Kansas City, 333; Oscar Grimes, Milwaukee, 333.

Has Home Run Supremacy
Williams not only held the batting lead and retained his home run supremacy with 22, but also held first in runs batted in with 56 and in total bases with 156. Bob Latschay of Indianapolis and M. G. McCullough of St. Paul each had 19 doubles and Charley Gelbert of Toledo seven triples to lead these departments. Toledo's Archie was the leading base stealer with 15.

Vance Page of Indianapolis added two more wins to his record over the week and set the pace for the pitchers with 10 wins and one defeat. John Niggeling of Indianapolis was next with seven victories and one defeat.

Kansas City continued to lead the team batting with 291 and the team fielding with 975. Sixty-six double plays by Minneapolis topped this department.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)
Mel Ott, Giants—His eighth homer beat Cubs, 5-3.
Hank Greenberg, Tigers—Hit two homers, drove in five runs and scored four in 128 win over Yankees.

Freddie Fitzsimmons, Dodgers—Handcuffed Cardinals with one run and seven hits or eight innings, drove in three runs himself in 5-2 victory.
Ernie Lombard, Reds—Hit three singles and drove in three runs in 6-4 win over Phillies.
Hal Trottsky, Indians—His two doubles and a single, driving in three runs, led Tribe to 7-6 triumph over Red Sox.

CAT EXPENDS LITTER
San Angelo, Texas.—(AP)—Felix Feiser is wondering if the "ready made" family his cat has adopted will be able to look a bulldog in the eye when its members grow up. The cat returned recently from a stroll in a nearby pasture with a small cottontail in its mouth and deposited it with her newly-born kittens. Other trips to the pasture brought other baby rabbits that have become members of the cat's family.

LEGION TIGERS WIN BY FORFEIT OVER WHITE SOX

The regularly scheduled game between the White Sox and Tigers of the Junior Legion baseball league was won by the Tigers via the forfeit rule.

The White Sox players evidently thought they might get their feet wet so they decided to stay home. Boys between 11 and 15 years of age are still sought by the teams and a good staff of coaches is available for boys wanting to learn baseball.

The schedule for the coming week follows:
June 27—Cubs vs. Cardinals
June 29—White Sox vs. Indians
July 1—Pirates vs. Tigers

	W	L	Tied
Pirates	2	0	1
Indians	2	0	1
Tigers	1	1	0
Cardinals	0	1	0
Cubs	0	2	0

MYER INSISTS DIET IMPROVED AVERAGE AT BAT

Now Has Current Percentage of .353 At the Plate

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—Add to the list of cures for hitting slumps that of Buddy Myer, American league batting champion in 1935—a diet.

The veteran Washington second baseman today explained his current .353 batting average as simply as that.

And Buddy—born Charles Solomon 34 years ago in Ellisville, Miss.—had reason to chuckle as he told his cure for his hitting has been given a healthy boost over the 269 and 293 averages of '36 and '37. It was four points better than the 349 he rang up in 1935. "My stomach was bad the last two years," the soft-spoken Buddy drawled. "I couldn't finish the '36 season. Last year I guess I shouldn't have been playing. Lots of times I didn't know whether I'd be able to finish up or not."

"But I have a diet now, I feel good and I think I can keep on hitting, with the diet and a little luck."

The 1938 batting crown? "Well," Myer smiled, "there are an awful lot of good hitters in this league. It's a league of hitters." Buddy, whom last winter's hot stove league had traded to the White Sox and nearing the end of a major league career, figuratively kept his fingers crossed as he talked of his comeback.

"You know," he said, "I haven't been in there against many left handed pitchers."
"Detroit can't be counted out," he said, switching to the pennant chase. "And we have a chance. Cleveland is the only club with stand-out pitching. No club has hit a real winning streak yet and when one does it will have the jump on the rest. It might be anyone of five."

The Yankees have been losing a lot of home games and that should be a tip-off. They're usually tough in their own ball yard."

Bits of Gossip of Sports
Picked Up By
AP Writer

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
New York, June 25.—(AP)—Suspicious sports writers began to smell the well-known rat when Robert Taylor, the movie star, was spotted in a delegation of Californians trying to talk Mike Jacobs into staging a heavyweight championship fight in San Francisco next year. Particularly since Taylor's next picture will be built around a fight story. . . . The Westerners are taking it seriously and guaranteed Mike a million potatoes to stage the show. . . . Mike told 'em to rake up the dough and then come back. . . . Six months ago, Mike said "From now on, all my important shows will be held in New York."

Unusual stories. The Yankees (who own Newark) selling a ball player (Bob Seeds) to the hated Giants. . . . Chicago sports writers say Windy City fans have about given up on the Cubs this year. . . . Note to sports editors: Mike Jacobs will have Max Baer signed to a three-year contract by nightfall and that means a Louis-Baer bout in September if Louis isn't scared off by the high income tax rate. . . . In 19 years of coaching, Wallace Wade of Duke, one of the best coaches in the country, has won only two games by the margin of extra points. . . . Incidentally, both were by scores of 20-12.

BALL WRITERS WILL WITNESS SEMI-PRO MEET

Thirty-Two States To Be Represented In Annual Tourney

Wichita, Kan., June 25.—Baseball writers from every section of the nation will gather here the night of Aug. 12 to watch the opening game of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress finals which will be played under streamlined rules.

The game will bring together teams from extreme ends of the nation, the state champions of California and Maine, and among the spectators will be the inventor of streamlined baseball, Frank S. Wright, Gainesville, Fla., according to Raymond Dumont, president of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress.

With 32 states to be represented in the national finals and with baseball writers and scouts from every section here, streamlined baseball will be given a thorough test. If successful, features of the new rules, which were innovated to speed up the game, will be incorporated in the 800 tournaments under sanction of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress in 1939, Dumont said.

Among the changes in vogue in the California-Maine game are: (1) Elimination of practice between innings; (2) Runner to supplant catcher while on base; (2) Pitcher to declare intentional walk to umpire without throwing over four balls.

Experts to Watch
Baseball writers who have announced that they will be here to watch the experimental game are Grantland Rice; Paul Mickelson, Associated Press, and George Kirksey, United Press.

Following the experimental game, 32 teams, including 30 regional champions after winning in district and state tournament competition, will battle for the 1938 National Semi-Pro Baseball championship.

The Enid (Okla.) Eason Oilers are the defending national champions. Buford (Ga.) Bona Allens are national runners-up. Both teams have been invited to compete with the 30 regional winners in defense of their titles.

Supervising the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress program in Illinois is A. R. Dahn of Elgin, state commissioner, with the state tournament established at Elgin. Three district commissioners have been appointed to direct district tournaments preceding the state finals, according to Dahn. They are Ralph R. "Dutch" Leonard of Champaign and Joseph M. Stanzak of North Chicago, Orrin Epper, Knoxville, and J. Kyle Anderson of Chicago.

Persons interested in accepting a post as district commissioner should communicate with the State Commissioner or with the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress, Wichita, Kan.

Amboy Softball Team Wins 16-6

Amboy softball boys drubbed the Dixon Evening Telegraph team 16 to 6 in a contest here Friday night.

The Telegraph team blew up in the last part of the game when Pitcher Marlin Wickert issued walks to several Amboy batters and then was rapped for a home run. Amboy on the other hand played a fine game with few errors and supported each other from the opening frame.

Illinois State League Nines in Crucial Battles

With Rochelle representing the crossroads in the campaign of the Dixon Knacks for an Illinois State league pennant, tomorrow will bring the teams of the circuit together in a pre-Fourth of July collision that will go a long way toward deciding the crown.

Rochelle invades Reynolds field here at 2 p. m. for the Dixon game Sunday. Maytown will journey to Ohio, the latter hoping to upset the dope and escape from the cellar. Walton meets the other cellar-holding nine, Welland's Senators, while the undefeated West Brooklyn team sporting five straight victories, tangles with Paw Paw at Paw Paw.

ROOKIES PRESS VETERANS FOR BATting LEAD

Sammy Chapman And Case Among Those Challenging

New York, June 25.—(AP)—Although both the current pacesetters in the big league batting races—Earl Averill of Cleveland with 384 in the American league and Ernie Lombardi of Cincinnati with 367 in the National—have been around for a long time, there are rookies and second or third year men in both loops who are right up there giving the veterans a fight.

In the American league, swingin' Sammy Chapman, fresh up with the Athletics from college, and George Washington Case of Washington's Senators are fourth and fifth in the hitting parade.

In the National league, Herschel Martin, Phillies' sophomore outfielder, is giving the "second-year jinx" a terrific pasting.

Brain Twizzlers

By
PROF. J. D. FLINT

Put on your old grey (matter) bonnet! There is some deep thinking to do.

A very old and very skilled wood carver was commissioned to carve a figure from a block of wood three feet long, one foot wide and one foot thick. The wood was of a valuable nature and the task would be one requiring great care. Payment was to be made to the carver on the basis of number of cubic inches removed from the block in the carving process. The carver started work and turned out a masterpiece. When it was done the carver said he removed one cubic foot and an argument started over the number of cubic inches removed when measured by weight because the customer said the wood might weigh differently at the heart and on the outside. The carver gave the matter thought and found a new way to determine the amount of wood removed. What can you think of?

—Roller skating under the big tent at Dixon every afternoon and evening. Private parties any night. (Adv.)

Slightly over a year ago the voters of the local community high school district voted for a gymnasium and carried the issue by a decisive four-to-one margin. Since that time the building has been erected and in the short space of eight months, over 14,000 people have attended community and school affairs in this new building.

Like any other public benefit this building must be paid for by taxation. It is the purpose of this article to correct many of the erroneous and exaggerated statements regarding the actual increase in school taxes for this gymnasium. The actual increase was 26 cents per hundred valuation making the total community high school rate 78 cents, which compares very favorably with the rates of other nearby schools listed at the end of this article.

Taxpayers who found a large increase in their 1937 taxes should remember that part of this was due to increased pauper taxes, and in the village proper there was an increase in the grade school rate of nearly twenty cents. The local grade school, (district No. 58) was forced to increase their educational fund levy because of the short-sighted policy of former boards.

For some years the grade school operated partly on taxes and partly on a surplus in the bank. With that surplus now depleted the present board was faced with the unpleasant duty of restoring the rate back to its original figure.

When a careful consideration of the benefits of an accredited school and a fine community building are made it will be seen then that the present rate of 78 cents is justified.

Some years back the high school board was faced with a choice of two courses of action, improve the school standing, or give up the operation of a high school in this community. What has been done in the rapid space of a few years is now a matter of record.

The standing and ratings of the school may be maintained and the gymnasium debt will be retired in less than ten years if the present rate is continued.

Rates of other northern Illinois high schools:

Franklin Grove 78, Paw Paw 81, Lee Center 138, Amboy 138, Ash-ton 138, Dixon 171, Shabbona 103, Malta 134, Kirkland 107, DeKalb 138, Sycamore 108, Cortland 108, Freeport 150, Lena 71, Dakota 72, Manlius 46, LaMoille 76, Walnut 106, Princeton 107, Concord 120, "Grade and high school."
